

Figure 1: Survey interface. Individuals are asked whether they know each individual in a pair; if they, in fact, know both individuals, they are then queried about the relationship status of the pair.